

Simple Sentence (Independent clause):

Subject, Verb

She changed the lightbulb.

Compound Sentence:

2 Independent clauses connected with a comma and coordinating conjunction-- (FANBOYS: for, and, not, but, or, yet, so)

She changed the light bulb, but she didn't like fixing things.

Complex Sentence

1 independent and 1 (or more) dependent clauses, joined with a subordinate conjunction. If the dependent clause is first, it needs to be followed by a comma--like I just did!)

Subordinate Conjunction

after	how	that although	if	though
as	in case (that)	unless as far as	in order (that)	until as soon as	in that	when as if	now that	whenever as though	once	where because	provided that	whereas before	rather than	wherever even if	since	whether even though	so that	while except	than	why

Although she was a great English teacher, she couldn't change a lightbulb safely.
